: the latest beta version released on the playstation 4, and mikro: the latest beta released on the xbox one. This is another one of the cool games you can play on steam, it's a break-out style game, where you must use different weapons to defend against waves of creatures. I don't want to give away too much about the story because it's a fairly short game. The character you play is a few months in protective custody, and has been granted his freedom. The game is set in a post-apocalyptic society, where weapons have become obsolete, and communication has been replaced by a radio. The player's job is to get from one place to another, to find a replacement for his weapons, and to search for a way to survive in the wasteland. The game is split in 3 different areas, and all of them has been designed to suit each other. The biggest problem is that there are so many different weapons to choose from, that I had some problems to decide, which ones were the most important. The game contains about 7 types of weapons, and about 50 weapons to choose from. The ones that i have used most are the melee weapons, as I have to fight against various creatures that doesn't mind you grabbing them. The weapons, that I've found, most usefull in this game, are the machete, the flame thrower, the machine gun and the grenades. I was also looking for a sniper rifle, but I couldn't find one. The game is very short and very easy, but I couldn't help thinking to myself that the different weapons made it feel a bit like a piece of cake. The enemies keep coming in wave after wave, but most of them don't get in your way. The characters were pretty dumb, in this game, but then again, the story didn't really give them much to think about. The combat and the movement is very smooth, as you can't really worry about what you're going to do, because you will get thrown wherever you're standing. The weapons have their own kind of feel, and I especially like the machete and the machine gun. I was wondering why the game is called "frostpunk", as there are many places where you 82157476af
